There is no question that this is a potentially dangerous technology and that it deserves to be banned. But it also means that you will likely see a lot of people pissed off at you. Your life will be turned upside down. If you expect to use your bike to get around safely, it is going to be expensive, hard to find, and not necessarily safe. If you expect to take the subway or bus it will likely be a less than pleasant experience for you, because of all the cross-selling by overzealous drivers and even more aggressive security guards. You will have to throw all of the things that you care about out of the window. It's not easy to get to those things. And when you do, you will have a lot of angry people trying to drag you away
