There are many ways to leverage mobile technology to capture more business. Here are three powerful mobile tools to help your business improve efficiency, increase revenues and deliver valuable information wherever your customers are.

Mobile accounting, mobile invoicing and mobile point-of-sale mTouchPos is a simple accounting program designed for small businesses, restaurants and clubs. The program manages your cash flow, inventory levels and stock. While it is designed for use on tablets and smartphones, the application can also be downloaded on the desktop. Once set up, users need only one button to start recording data. The application has a highly intuitive interface. The program requires an SQL server to be installed, however, this is performed automatically during install and ensures data is safely stored. Also, once properly set up, users must run the program with Administrator privileges. A second important security feature is the ability to password-protect the database. The application allows users to define new products and complete with barcodes, descriptions and pricetags. Customers are then easily added to the system as they purchase items. Once items have been created, recording sales requires only a few mouse clicks. The application allows users to define new clients and a special “Debt” category can be employed to keep track of delayed transactions. One of the great features of this application is the ability to export reports to multiple formats, including PDFs, HTMLs, RTFs and even TXTs. The utility keeps track of item stocks and store sales.

While the application is suitable for a small to medium size store, restaurant or club, it is a great tool for companies that need to track day-to-day operations and inventory levels. Migrate business processes to mobile Digital transformation has become a way of life for many businesses. However, the move from an old school culture to a mobile-first approach has been a challenge. According to Gartner, enterprises are expected to increase the percentage of digital services and applications used by 80% by 2020. This presents a major challenge for
