A: My guess is you might have somehow had two copies of Adobe Acrobat installed. Check if you have multiple instances of Adobe Acrobat on your computer by opening up the Control Panel and looking for Adobe Acrobat under Programs. And if you do have multiple instances of Adobe Acrobat, you should only have one set as your default application, so that you can run it without having to manually select the one you want to run. To remove the other one, you should go to Start Menu > Settings > Select Default Apps and remove the one that you don't want to use. If you have already removed it but it's still trying to start, try rebooting your computer and then launch Acrobat again to see if it works or not. If it does, try to reset it again and see if it goes back to the correct application. If not, I can't think of anything else to help you unless you've got another solution. Note: This only happens on Windows 10 but this question is not about Windows. Business Description: We offer competitive financing from pre-approved sources.
