How does aura kingdom compare to the other levels?; Alvaria on Class Expert:PoP, Nov 3, 2018 News Now Washington Veterans, transportation, energy and farming are the top issues for Washington state voters this year, according to a new political survey. But the survey, conducted by a public relations firm for the Washington Farm Bureau, showed that taxes are not the top concern for most voters. The survey results, released this week, showed that in all, 77% of the state's residents polled said "the most important issue for their vote is either veterans, transportation, or energy." Only 7% of those polled cited taxes as the top issue. The results mirrored the previous year's survey, when 77% of Washington voters chose "veterans" as their top issue, and just 7% chose "taxes." But the new poll, conducted by Public Opinion Strategies, showed that the energy concerns of Washington voters have increased over the past two years. In both 2012 and 2014, the issue of energy was the top concern for voters. Statewide voting preferences were also a "tight three-way race" between Democratic Governor Jay Inslee, Republican Attorney General Bob Ferguson and Independent U.S. Senator Maria Cantwell. In the Republican primary race for governor, political newcomer John Walsh is holding a substantial lead over four other challengers, including Spokane businessman Jeff Burgess. Walsh is seen as having an advantage over the other candidates because he supports President Trump's bid for the GOP nomination, but also has a plan for climate change, education and the economy. In a crowded field of GOP candidates for the 2nd Congressional District, Republican incumbent Cathy McMorris Rodgers is facing a challenge from Spokane County Commissioner Al French, former state representative Jess Spear and Rob McKenna, an ex-associate attorney general. In the Democratic primary for 2nd District, U.S. Rep. Pram 4bc0debe42
