EC 50 The Dexodonex EC 50 (also known as Ons, Incapinol and Chauvinex Aspren) is a drug used in the treatment of hyperkalemia and severe hyperglycemia in hospital patients. It has also been sold under the brand names Chauvinex, Incapinol and Ons. The medication was developed by Janssen and introduced in the United States in 1989 under the trade name Aspren. It was subsequently sold under the name Dexodonex EC 50 by Roche. It is available in both immediate-release (IR) and sustained-release (SR) forms. Medical uses Dexodonex EC 50 was developed to manage patients with severe hyperkalemia or hyperglycemia in hospitalized patients. It is used to treat these conditions when standard approaches such as sodium bicarbonate or glucose are unsuccessful. It may be helpful in preventing life-threatening complications associated with hyperkalemia such as cardiac arrhythmia. It is often used in combination with an insulin infusion and an insulin pump. Dexodonex EC 50 was approved in 1988 by the FDA under the trade name Aspren. In the United States it is sold under the trade name Dexodonex EC 50, by Roche.

Contraindications Dexodonex EC 50 should not be used in pregnant women, because the drug may cause fetal harm. It is not recommended that Dexodonex EC 50 be used in children or in the elderly.

Side effects The most common adverse events include headache, nausea, constipation, vomiting, abdominal pain, dizziness, fatigue, anxiety, confusion, hallucinations, and somnolence.

Pharmacology Mechanism of action Dexodonex EC 50 is a potassium binder. It has a high affinity for magnesium ions and it forms a complex with potassium. It increases urinary excretion of potassium. As a result it lowers the total body potassium. It is not metabolized and is excreted unchanged in the urine. It is slowly hydrolyzed in the intestinal tract to the active metabolite nalbuphine which is followed by metabolism into the metabolites N-isobutyl-nalbuphine and nalbuphine.

Pharmacokinetics Dexodonex EC 50 is available in a short and long sustained-release pill form. It has a relatively long half-life of approximately

A unique tile-based puzzle game where you must clear the skies by strategically incinerating clouds in timed puzzle sequences. As the manager of a fictitious air traffic control service, your job is to coordinate passenger flights in both land and air. Every day, flying aircraft passengers will land on their assigned airports and complete various tasks for you. As time passes, you will start to receive reports from the air traffic control service. Timing is the key to success in WISHLIST BURNING SKIES, as it will be difficult to get enough fuel for all the tasks. When fuel runs out, there will be minimal penalties and you'll have a whole new fuel counter instead. The fuel counter will update as you complete tasks, but not at the same pace as task completion, but rather at an average of half a task completed every second. The maximum amount of fuel available for each mission is represented in the fuel counter as a star. You will eventually need to turn off the air traffic control for a while, but you can't do that until all of your active tasks have been completed. Gameplay: Now Available on Steam! A unique tile-based puzzle game, WISHLIST BURNING SKIES is a personal favorite. Immerse yourself in a constantly moving environment, battling against time as you try to clear the skies with a team of planes. WISHLIST BURNING SKIES is a tile-based puzzle game, where you have to clear the skies with a team of planes in a timed puzzle sequence. A special feature is the ability to load your own WISHLIST, enabling you to create your own custom challenges! Game Play Every day, flying aircraft passengers will land on their assigned airports. You will need to hold back the incoming flights and keep them out of view of the pilot until your flight completes. As time passes, you will start to receive reports from the air traffic control service. You must ensure that all of the passengers on your aircraft get to their destinations in time. Time-sensitive tasks will need to be cleared in order of completion, until there is enough fuel to complete all of them. When fuel runs out, there will be minimal penalties and you'll have a whole new fuel counter instead. The fuel counter will update as you complete tasks, but not at the same pace as task completion, but rather at an average of half a task completed every second.
