Understanding layers All layers in Photoshop are placed on top of each other, with no space in between. Even though some of the interface elements work only within a single layer, the layers themselves work across all the layers. You can use all layers in a file, but you cannot add elements to a layer unless that layer is also selected. You can't mix and match layers with their effects, which is a real-life photography nightmare. One layer cannot contain another layer because layers are all linked together into a single layer group or object. If you try to place a layer onto a layer that's already there, you see the message shown in Figure 4-1. Figure 4-1: You must select the top layer before you can add another layer.

Hundreds of dogs are dying from treatable conditions like mange, cancer and heartworms. Homeowners are intentionally leaving dogs outside without food or shelter during the heatwave. The rescue group Animal Justice is investigating more than 100 dog deaths in Queensland and Victoria since January. Susannah Rowe from Animal Justice says cases are often linked to single mothers. "Their children are being looked after by another family member and it's very common that it's grandmothers and it's also very common that those who are doing this are not being prosecuted," she said. "We're seeing large scale cruelty charges for dog fighting, but in doing that we've seen cases that look at dog-on-dog fighting. "But we see people just walking them onto a street, leaving them alone in their cars, leaving them outside in the heat and leaving them in that state." Animal Justice says nearly half of the animals they see at its investigations are flea-infested and a significant number are ill and dying of treatable conditions like mange. Those involved in the dog-fighting ring include young children and people with mental health issues. Susannah Rowe says dog fighting is organised and structured in more than 90 per cent of cases. "It is not a matter of two siblings throwing a ball and playing with a dog or cats, it is not a matter of having a pet, the dog is just a tool that people use to fight for their own enjoyment." Animal Justice is now launching an education campaign to raise awareness of animal cruelty and warn that parents should be prepared to face up to potential legal consequences. It's also calling for a ban on dogs being left to suffer in the heat and a requirement that pets must be left with people who are registered with a Pet Training and Protection service. The data is evidence that the euro zone's economies are still suffering from the aftereffects of the world's deepest ever economic crisis. Newsroom Cruise Ships Celebrate Christmas with Festive Tree Lighting Ceremony in New York Harbor Apr 22, 2013 April 21, 2013 — With a powerful display of Christmas spirit, Royal Caribbean International (NYSE:RCL) ships from nine cruise lines took part in the most recent annual New York Harbor Christmas Ship Celebration, a beloved annual tradition in New York City. The ships departed from Pier 88 in Manhattan on April 14, 2013, and finished the cruise in New York harbor and around the Statue of Liberty on April 22. Celebrating the second year of the holiday celebration, the festivities included a tree lighting ceremony on the Veranda Deck of the largest cruise ship to participate. The ship's captain, Michael Moran, then placed a colorful paper Christmas tree in the location of the ceremony. Visitors lined up in a procession to join the celebrations. Both children and adults were given a chance to color the tree, decorate gingerbread houses, make jolly Santas and enjoy performances by the B.U.S.A.S. Dance & Percussion and the Wild Animal Actors. "This is the fourth year that we have participated in the New York Harbor Christmas Ship Celebration," said Scott Lundy, senior vice president of sales and marketing. "Celebrating the holidays at sea is always a popular tradition with our guests. Last year, we received terrific feedback and the customer response was so positive that we wanted to participate again this year. The captain and crew are fantastic hosts." Other ships taking part in the celebrations were the Royal Caribbean's Enchantment of the Seas, the first of the season's 12 Royal Caribbean International brands to sail from the Port of New York and New Jersey; the MSC Seaside's, one of the first vessels of the season to call on the Empire State; and the Carnival Miracle and Carnival Spirit, returning to the beloved holiday festivities after being among the first vessels to participate last year. Other cruise lines that participated included P&O Australia, Celebrity Cruises, Crystal Cruises, Holland America Cruise Line and Princess Cruises. "We have just a little over a month until the spring cruise season begins and this is going to be a busy time," Lundy said. "We would love to welcome everyone back on board with our fantastic crew, and we look forward to welcoming more guests to many of our ships throughout the coming months."
