The father of a little girl who was kicked to death in Mucajah, Pakistan, was interviewed recently by the BBC. Her name is Noor, or “light” in Urdu. She was two years old. Her father says that he was outraged when police refused to take any action against the people who beat his daughter and left her to die at the side of the road: “They killed my daughter and then walked away. People, women and children saw this and they were laughing at us. If we had a weapon, I would have killed everyone who did this to her,” he says. (In this video, Noor’s father pleads with the police for someone to help him — he only wants an investigation, not charges against the person who beat his little girl to death, and then left her there, naked and cold. She died the next day.) Noor was born in 2010, the daughter of a single mother of two girls. Her father says that the family “was not happy” that she was born, but she was a healthy baby. One day, Noor had gone for a walk with her mother and some other girls. They were throwing stones at a truck that was traveling slowly down the street, attempting to photograph the incident. From the BBC: The driver of the truck turned round and saw the young girls and started swearing at them. As he did this he slapped one of them. The owner of the truck did not confront the driver of the vehicle, and got back inside the truck. A short time later, Noor’s father arrived in the village. The father of the child was agitated, and went to the police station, where he was given “no information whatsoever,” he says. He has not been able to get the police to take action against the truck driver, even though he has repeatedly gone to the police station with video footage of the incident. When he returned home to find that Noor had died, he posted the incident to Facebook. He says that he has had to bury her children a total of eight times, as the village council refuses to allow her to bury Noor. “Her father is alone, without any help,” he said. “Nobody will help.” The father lost his younger sister, too, when she was

WHEN the woman, whose name has not been released, left the Blenheim home about 10.30am on Wednesday she took several jars, a sock, clothes, a mobile phone and some money with her. “We lost everything,” she told the Stuff Motoring campaign. “They stole everything.” “She took the car. It wasn’t in the driveway.” The woman said the ex-boyfriend, who has been identified as a “Tasmanian”, had taken the keys with him. “He’s supposed to have gone to work, but he’s not answering his phone,” she said. “We don’t know where he is. “His car was parked in the driveway when I left.” The woman said it was only her former partner she had been in contact with for the past 10 months. She said she had met the man on Craigslist and they had “locked eyes” after exchanging more than 100 phone messages and three video calls. “I can’t believe what happened. I was just blown away.” Police confirmed yesterday that the incident was being investigated and that the two people who remained at the address had been identified and were yet to give their side of the story. Would really appreciate any help with this as it seems to be a very complex task to even begin. Thanks for any help. A: I haven't tried it yet myself, but Visual Studio has a field type wizard. The SharePoint field type wizard provides a
