Related Articles Author:Admin The president of the Kyrgyz Republic, Almazbek Atambayev, said on Thursday that five million European citizens have a passport from his country and asked the European Parliament to send Kyrgyz nationals to its Brussels headquarters to join the institution. He told MEPs during a hearing on the visa liberalisation reforms in Strasbourg that visas are important for Europeans to visit their relatives in the CIS countries. “Last year we issued 5.5 million European passports, including 5.5 million Russians and over a million Ukrainians. There are a lot of people in the CIS who are in need of visas and we are considering granting visas to our nationals in accordance with the law,” Atambayev said. He noted that in 2017 there were 9.1 million Russians and over 1.5 million Ukrainians coming to Kyrgyzstan, and said that for Kyrgyz citizens, “going to Russia, Ukraine and Belarus is just like going to the centre of Europe”. The president said more than a million citizens have passports from the EU and the majority of them are Russians and Ukrainians. “This is an important question. It is clear that our people have the right to live and work in any part of the world they want. They have the right to travel. But this right is not automatic. It is a law and it is for us to act according to the law. It is also for us to take responsibility for our citizens. How can we do this if we are not there ourselves?” he said. Atambayev said that his country wants to join the visa-free agreement between the EU and its visa-free neighbouring countries. He said the main reason for asking to become a member of the visa-free agreement is to provide citizens of Kyrgyzstan
